Informasjon om avhandlingen:

The thesis analyzes different deployments - graphic and conceptual - of the diagram, and its implications for contemporary architectural practice, identifying general trends concerning intentions, repertoire as well as attitudes towards the role and tasks of the architect. The study analyzes diagrams as forms of representation the diagrams in terms of their involvement in exchanges that form the base of architectural practice: Between intentions and repertoire on one side, and the program and reality, the pragmatic context surrounding practice on the other. The focus is on positioning the various contemporary deployments of diagrams in relation to changes in the socio-material and cultural context surrounding architectural practice, as well as in relation to different diachronic trajectories.
